

WILSON DOES NOT FAVOR RECESS

WANTS IMPROVEMENT ON CURRENCY IF IT IS POSSIBLE, BUT NO DELAY.

CLAIMS INDIVIDUAL BENEFITS

Says Direct Election of Senators Will Place Party on Stand to Prove Its Claims.

Washington, Oct. 12.—President Wilson let it be known tonight that he did not favor a recess of congress at this time, but desired continuous and uninterrupted consideration of the pending currency bill. Various reports that the president was attempting to force the senate to act more speedily than it wished and efforts by some democratic senators to secure a recess until November 15, while the senate banking and currency committee was at work on the house bill, brought from those close to the president a clarification of the white house position.

The president, they said, had no idea of attempting to fix an arbitrary time when the currency bill should or should not be considered. He wished as expressed throughout his conferences with senate leaders has been for continuous attention to the currency measure with the confidence that with concentrated effort and break in the committee, currency legislation would be out of the senate before the beginning of the December session of congress.

While averse to any haste that would impair the value of currency reform the president is anxious that if the senate can improve upon the house bill it will proceed to do so. He still believes, however, that this can be accomplished during the seven weeks remaining of the present session.

Majority Democrats Oppose Recess. Efforts to bring about a recess incidentally have shown that a majority of democrats were opposed to the proposition. However, the time of the currency bill from the senate committee was in doubt.

The senate committee thus far has shown a disposition to report a bill that all of its members could support and there is no evidence of a direct break in the committee. Differences are apparent over certain features of the measure, but it is believed that many of the senators will be reconciled by certain changes in the house bill which will not affect its general character and will leave it acceptable to President Wilson. Aside from the contention that the people of the country demand immediate currency reform to meet the commercial expansion expected from the operation of the new tariff, the president is making it plain to those who are conferring with him that early action on legislation is just as important to individual members of the senate as it is to the redemption of the administration's platform pledges.

No Delay Is Wanted.

With the plan for a revision of the anti-trust laws, credit legislation, immigration, treaties, consideration of arbitration, treaties and appropriation bills, the president takes the view that to delay work on currency now and throw it over into the regular session would not only shorten the time for other vital reforms, but would unnecessarily prolong the next session of congress. This would prevent the senators as well as house members from getting back to their states and home districts to participate in the spring primary campaigns, seriously interfering with plans for the November campaign. The president is pointing, too, to the fact that the next election of United States senators will be in effect for the first time. The president believes the democratic party then will be placed on the stand as a unit to prove the claims for continuation in power. With a record of accomplishment in the currency and other big reforms behind it, he is confident the party will be returned to control of congress with an even larger majority in the senate.

Little Boats Currency.

Congress has little to occupy it now except currency. An agreement has been made to consider the "seamen's servitude" bill in the senate from October 16 to 22 with a vote on the latter day. With no other pressing business before either house, a quorum probably will be lacking almost continuously, but the leaders can summon members enough at any time. During the week the president will have before him the urgent deficiency bill with its provisions exempting deputy collectors of revenue and deputy United States marshals from the civil service.

Dallas Hale Shot and Killed Near Gatesville

Gatesville, Tex., Oct. 12.—Dallas Hale, a farmer, living fifteen miles northwest of here, near the Weaver bend of the Leon river, was shot and killed and his son, Sherman Hale, was seriously wounded this morning. The shooting was done with a 44 Winchester rifle. Sheriff E. B. McWhorter was called to the scene of the killing and placed Charley Beard under arrest. Beard is now in the Coryell county jail charged with murder. The shooting is said to have fol-

WOODRUFF IS DEAD

FORMER LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK SUCCEEDS TO PARALYSIS.

Stricken While Addressing Progressive Party Rally in New York Two Weeks Ago.

New York, Oct. 12.—Timothy L. Woodruff, formerly lieutenant governor of New York, died at 9:15 o'clock tonight. He had laid in a critical condition for nearly two weeks after having been stricken with paralysis while addressing a progressive party rally in this city. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Woodruff rallied for a time from his first attack and hopes were entertained for his recovery. Last Sunday night, however, his condition again became alarming and he lapsed into unconsciousness from which he emerged only once for a brief interval. Late last night the family gave up all hope. During the night and today the use of stimulants and oxygen was resorted to, and this, together with Mr. Woodruff's great vitality, kept him alive through the day.

With him as he died were Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Rodney Ward, a daughter, and Mr. Ward, and John E. Woodruff, his son, and the latter's wife.

Born in New Haven, Conn., 55 years ago and graduated from Yale in the class of 1879, Mr. Woodruff shortly afterward entered a business career in New York and soon began to take an active interest in politics. As a republican he was an active political figure in New York state for nearly thirty years and until a year ago, when he left that party and joined the progressives, his name was nearly always to be found on the roll of republican national, state and city conventions.

Mr. Woodruff was long leader of his party in New York. His lodge in the Adirondacks, Kamp Killbuck, became famous as a place where the leaders were accustomed to meet for conferences. As a delegate from New York in the republican convention of 1904, he nominated James S. Sherman for vice president.

Mr. Woodruff's first public office was commissioner of parks in Brooklyn in 1893. He ran for lieutenant governor in 1894 and was elected, and re-nominated by acclamation and re-elected in 1898 and again in 1900.

Timothy Lester Woodruff, ex-lieutenant governor of New York, was born in New Haven, Conn., August 4, 1858. He was graduated from Yale University in 1879 and entered commercial life in which he was extraordinarily successful before he turned his attention to politics. He was a director in several large banking and trust companies. His first political appointment was as park commissioner of Brooklyn in 1893. In 1897 he was elected lieutenant-governor of New York. Woodruff made the speech nominating James S. Sherman for the vice presidency of the United States in the republican national convention in 1904. He had amassed a large fortune.

ALDAPE CLAIMS NO DELAY WILL BE CAUSED BY HUERTA'S COUP.

GOVERNORS ACCEPT COURSE

All, Military and Civil, Report Tranquility in Their States—Quiet in Capital.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Secretary of State Bryan and Mrs. Bryan left hurriedly for Washington this morning, cancelling a stop at East Radford, Va., where the Bryans had intended spending Monday with ex-Governor Tyler and wife. Mr. Bryan would only say that the Mexican situation demanded his immediate presence at the capital.

Mexico City, Oct. 12.—There has been endless speculation here regarding the effect of Provisional President Huerta's coup d'etat. Many appear to believe that the logical result will be a split in the army which they accept has been held together only by the force of General Huerta's personality. They argued that there has been dissatisfaction over General Huerta's course in general and that this will test loyalty to the danger point. They look for startling developments in the near future.

On the other hand, there is a large element which believes President Huerta took the only possible course and expresses wonder that he had not taken the step long ago. Huerta's friends say it is no secret that had the army believed any substantial part of the army would stand with them, they would have overthrown Huerta and taken the reins of government wholly in their hands.

Minister of the Interior Manuel Garza Aldape made the following announcement today:

"The officers who have been arrested and imprisoned cannot be released on any condition. They will be tried for various offenses of which they are accused. Not one of them has been released by the government since they were taken into custody."

"The dissolution of congress will not affect the holding of elections in the least. The ballots will be cast in October. The only change in the election program will be that new senators and deputies will be elected to replace those put out of office by the coup d'etat."

"The governors, civil and military, of all the states, have been notified of the dissolution of congress, and all have responded, accepting the government's course of action. All the governors have reported that conditions in their respective states and territories are tranquil and that there have been no disturbances anywhere."

Minister Aldape has assured the deputies' families that the prisoners will be treated with consideration. They will be allowed to receive clothing, food and reading matter from their families and friends, but will not be permitted to talk to any one, even on regular visiting days.

A detachment of troops patrols the streets, but the excitement which resulted from the coup has subsided. There has been no rioting or disorder in the capital in consequence of the events of the past few days.

U. S. STILL "OBSERVES"

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS STATE NO IMMEDIATE STEPS IN MEXICAN SITUATION.

Recognition by Authorities Now in Power Is More Remote Than Ever.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Dispatches to the state department tonight report about ninety Mexican deputies still under arrest. Originally it was reported that 110 were arrested, and in view of the statement of Manuel Garza Aldape, minister of the interior, that "not one of the deputies had been released," it is presumed here that not all of the 110 finally were imprisoned after the episode at the Mexican chamber of deputies on Friday.

Throughout the day messages came to the state department describing the situation in the Mexican capital as quiet, but fraught with all sorts of possibilities. There were no predictions of what would result from the arrest of the deputies, but attention was drawn to the approaching return of Felix Diaz, en route homeward, as likely to have some effect on the situation. Some of the imprisoned deputies were close friends of Diaz and his influence may be brought to bear to obtain their release.

President Wilson read the dispatches from Mexico, manifesting no interest in the situation, but no comment was made at the white house or the state department. Secretary Bryan is returning tonight from Knoxville, Tenn., where he delivered an address at the conservation exposition. He is expected to discuss the situation with the president early tomorrow.

Those officials who commented on the situation informally decided the American government probably would take no steps for several days, being content to play the role of observer. The effect of the incidents of the last few days upon the American policy, is generally agreed here, will be to make even more remote any prospect of recognition by the United States of the authorities now in power in Mexico and to result in the closest scrutiny of the use of the military in connection with the election of October 26. Official advice said tonight no excitement was apparent in Mexico City.

EYEWITNESSES TELL GRAPHIC STORIES OF PANIC ABOARD DOOMED SHIP VOLTURNO

SURVIVOR, RESCUED BY CARMANIA TELLS OF HOURS OF AGONY ON HEATED DECKS OF DOOMED SHIP

Watches Boats Lowered Only to Break Into Pieces as They Strike the Water—Saves Himself By Swimming to the Rescue Ship.

London, Oct. 12.—Walter Trintepohl, a German, who swam to the Carmania and was rescued in an exhausted condition, since being taken aboard the Carmania has been in the ship's hospital, threatened with pneumonia. He told his story before he became seriously ill, but, owing to his exhausted state and his broken English, his account of the disaster was somewhat incoherent. Trintepohl had been employed at Barcelona and took third-class passage on the Voltorno to secure a position offered him in New York.

"All went well," said Trintepohl, "until 6 o'clock Thursday morning, when the fire alarm sounded. We were aroused and told to go on deck, as fire had broken out in the hold. On assembling life belts were handed around and much time was occupied in fastening them. We were told that the fire soon would be quenched, but the captain thought it wise for all to have belts as a precaution."

"The fire frightened the children, who cried bitterly. There were many babies in arms. The fire grew worse. We saw things blazing below. About 10 o'clock there was a cry to lower the boats."

"The captain behaved splendidly. So did the officers who were English. I am sorry to say that the crew, who were Germans and Belgians, behaved very badly. The people rushed about wildly and the crew seemed to think they ought to have first place and instead of quieting passengers they made the panic worse."

"The first officer took charge of the first boat, but although he wanted the women and children saved first, a majority of those who entered the boats were members of the crew."

Boats Are Smashed. "This boat was smashed against the ship's side. Just as it reached the water it broke in two and all in it were drowned."

"Meanwhile, attempts were made to lower the second boat. I cannot say who was in charge of this, but I do know that after the chief steward had thrown provisions in he jumped in himself. There were more men than children and children in this boat, which did not go. The people rushed about against the ship and all were drowned. The two boats were amidship. Three other boats were put out aft. The fourth officer was in one of them, but I cannot say which one. All was confusion. The ropes broke and the occupants were thrown into the water and drowned or killed. When the captain saw what had happened he cut the cable of the other boats so that they could not be lowered."

"We were so kind when we saw the Carmania come, for we said, 'Now we shall all be saved.'"

"The firemen rushed up from below and refused to go back. The captain drew his revolver and drove them below, but soon after as the fire was spreading, they were obliged to abandon the engines."

"As soon as the Carmania was sighted the captain made all the women and children go to one side and the men to the other side. He had been compelled to leave the bridge and go aft, but it was too hot. Women wept, shrieked, laughed and became hysterical."

"We had no thought of food, but in the afternoon we considered it better to get something and went to the kitchens, which we found deserted. Some of the men and women tore off biscuits and helped ourselves to biscuits and beer. Most of the passengers refused to eat."

"We saw rats sent from the Carmania, but nobody told us to jump in. In fact we knew not what they were there for. About 6 o'clock the decks aft began to get very warm, then hotter and hotter, but we did not seem to feel the heat."

Forget Hot Decks. "When shown his boat with the sole half burned through, Trintepohl said: 'I don't remember this, but it was awful when the flames burst out. Some of the men and women tore their hair, but others were quite still.'"

"After the explosion I thought it better to jump, for I am a good swimmer, and an English passenger and one of the crew said they would accompany me. I jumped first; they followed. I made for the German ship, but they did not hear me. Then I came towards the Carmania and shouted, 'Help, help,' and was saved by aid of the searchlight. I was about an hour in the sea and became half unconscious. I know now I was got out."

"During the day five sailors and one steward fell into the fire and were burned to death."

"I know nothing more. I came away because it was too hot to stay any longer and I feared the whole ship would burn up."

When Trintepohl was told that according to the captain's wireless message six boats had been launched and two got away, he said:

"It is not so; I was there all the time and saw everything. No boat got away."

General Passenger Agent Says But 1,100 Passengers

New York, Oct. 12.—Paul G. Fourman, general passenger agent of the Uranium Line, said tonight that published statements that the steamer Voltorno was certified to carry 1,500 passengers was erroneous. He said her carrying capacity was 1,100 and her certified capacity 1,180. The capacity of the two boats was 1,240. He added that there had been frequent fire drills and that previous to every sailing the vessel was examined. He also denied that the fire hose on the Voltorno was insufficient, adding that the hose had been inspected and passed by United States steamboat inspectors.

It became known that Mrs. H. P. Miller, wife of the chief officer of the Voltorno, a passenger on the Kronland, was a witness of the destruction of her husband's vessel. Mrs. Miller, who had been visiting in England, returned from Dover October 4, on the Kronland, as the rules of the Uranium and other companies do not permit the wives of officers to travel on the same vessels with their husbands.

To Wireless, Organization and Speed Is Due Rescues

London, Oct. 13.—A wireless from the Carmania to the Daily Mail this morning says that in the rescue of the passengers from the Voltorno the boats took in succession the survivors, who passed one by one down lines. Daybreak saw the arrival of two other steamers—Car and Narragansett. The latter, an oil tank, which came at full speed, took up a position slightly to the windward of the Voltorno. In a few minutes she had two large streams of oil pouring on the water. This was invaluable in helping the rescue work of the smaller boats around the Voltorno's stern.

"By 9 o'clock the remaining 521 had been safely taken off. Each ship went on a short cruise in different directions to scout for the missing boats, but nothing was seen of them."

"That over 550 lives were not lost was due, first to the wireless, second to the speedy arrival and organization of Captain Barr of the Carmania; third, to the splendid seamanship of the Voltorno's rescue squadron; fourth, to the Voltorno's staunch bulkheads; fifth, to the providential moderation of the gale during Thursday night."

A physician was summoned by phone and immediate response was made, with the result that the effects of the snake poison in the child's system were counteracted and it will recover.

Passenger Aboard Carmania, First to Reach Burning Vessel, Denies That Two Boats Got Away With Their Cargoes of Frightened Humanity.

CAPTAIN IS THE LAST TO LEAVE

Flames Do Not Reach the After Deck on Which the Passengers and Crew Await Rescue—Nothing Seen of Two Boats After Being Lowered.

London, Oct. 13.—(Monday)—The latest accounts of the disaster to the steamship Voltorno, burned and abandoned in midocean Friday morning, confirm that the loss of life will be limited to about 136. The Carmania, first of the rescuing ships to reach the burning steamer, arrived off Queenstown this morning, but owing to the gale, proceeded directly to Fishguard, where she is due to arrive at 11 a. m. today.

A graphic story by the solitary survivor aboard the Carmania was received by wireless and presents a terrible picture of the horror, the panic and confusion aboard the burning liner. Walter Trintepohl, a German, who tells the story, however, is clearly suffering from the stress of illness and his awful experiences and his story is too incoherent to be accepted in every detail.

Most important, if true, is his denial that two boats got away from the Voltorno. According to other accounts, Captain Inch was the last to leave his vessel, which still was burning late Friday night and was a danger to navigation.

Forty of the 136 persons lost from the Voltorno were in the two boats which succeeded in getting away from the burning vessel and which, without doubt, were swamped. The majority of the other persons who lost their lives were in four other boats which were smashed against the steamer's sides in attempts to launch them.

All this occurred before the arrival of the Carmania and the other liners summoned by wireless call for help. The Carmania, with one lone survivor of the Voltorno aboard, found it too rough to stop at Queenstown and is proceeding direct to Fishguard. From that survivor, however, comes a thrilling story of the burning of the steamer, of the terror, of the struggle for the boats, the death of those who went over the sides and his own desperate fight for life.

Arthur Spurgeon, a passenger on the Carmania, in a wireless dispatch, supplements his own description of the race of the Carmania to the burning vessel and the rescue of the passengers of the Voltorno by the story told him by the survivor. Spurgeon tells of the attempts to get lifeboats alongside the Voltorno.

"Nothing," he said, "was seen of the two boats launched with about twenty passengers each after they left the Voltorno's side. Four others were smashed against the ship's side and the occupants either killed or drowned."

"At 9 o'clock Thursday night the captain of the Voltorno sent a despairing message, which read:

"For God's sake help us, or we perish."

"By a miracle the flames did not spread to the after deck. Eventually the seas moderated and boats saved 521 persons. The death roll numbers 136."

The wireless operator aboard the Carmania sends the following message:

"Two boats were lowered from the Voltorno before the Carmania arrived and 110 passengers were lost. Disembarkation commenced before daylight. Total number lost is 136, so far as known."

A wireless message from the captain of the Devonian, one of the rescuing steamers, says he has 59 survivors aboard, comprising 18 men, 20 women and 21 children, all well. This is the same number previously reported.

A wireless message from the steamer Seydlitz, forwarded from Bremen, says she has aboard 46 survivors, instead of 36, as previously reported. This would account for the ten supposed to have been aboard the Carmania, the latter steamer having been credited with 11 survivors, whereas she is bringing in only one.

Among the first class passengers on the Voltorno there were only two Americans, John Krug and Frieda Krug.

Estimate of Captain Shows That 143 Persons Perished

First Direct Communication From Survivor Received at Steamship Company Offices in New York. La Touraine Steaming Toward Havre.

New York, Oct. 12.—A message from Captain Inch of the Steamer Voltorno, the first direct communication from a person who had been on the ill-fated Uranium liner to reach the offices of the steamship company here, was received today. It was sent by wireless from the steamer Kronland and picked up at Ouessant, France, and relayed to New York by cable. It said:

"Voltorno on fire; abandoned in latitude 48.29 north, longitude 34.39 west. Approximate passengers saved 485; approximate crew 25. (Signed)

"INCH."

If Captain Inch's figures are correct, 143 persons lost their lives as a result of the disaster. Officials of the Uranium line said tonight that the records showed that there were 560 passengers and a crew of 93 on the Voltorno. Taking the number of persons saved as sent by Captain Inch and those given by the company as a basis for computation, it would appear that 75 passengers and 68 of the ship's personnel, a total of 143, perished.

"Passengers we saved, fifteen women and four children, all scantily clad, follow:

"Frivia Bix, Perry Bix, Edna Friedman, Mrs. Geduck Parashie and son, Nicola; Maria Idenberg, Esther Kaphana, Selce Kephke, Father Kaphke, Alexandra Montkonski, Visay Laudin, Esther Lentepsko, Mrs. Hia Politsuck, Bella Reconsky, Mrs. Maria Nikitsuck and her children, Pedro, Dimitrio and Catherine; Leokadda Wojciek."

"Throughout the day the offices of the Uranium line were besieged with persons seeking tidings of relatives or friends aboard the Voltorno. Paul G. Fourman, the general passenger agent of the line, and E. O. Thomas, the manager, were compelled, until the list of the saved aboard the Rappahanock came, to tell them they had no further information than had been published in the newspapers."

One woman sought news of her mother and three children. Abraham Sainsky desired news as to the fate of Ida Baltaska, his 18-year-old sweetheart, who was coming from Kiev, Russia, to marry him. He showed a letter she had posted at Rotterdam on a faster steamer than the Voltorno, in which she said she was looking forward with great happiness to their meeting.

GOLD BADGE FOR CHAPLAIN

Token of Esteem Presented by Recorder Wren to Oscar Myre for Cops.

Practically the whole of the Waco police force was present at the meeting held yesterday afternoon in the city court room to hear Rev. Ashley Chappell, Mr. Chappell took for his text the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

Oscar Myre, who has been instrumental in inaugurating the Sunday afternoon services, which are held twice a month for the benefit of the police force, was presented with a gold badge inscribed "Oscar Myre, Police Chaplain." City Recorder Joe Wren made the speech of presentation.

Chief Addresses Men.

Chief Hollis Harrison made a short talk on some of the details of the police work. The chief called attention to the fact that the trash cans provided by the city were insufficient for the purpose and that property owners were having to provide their own trash boxes in front of their stores down town. He instructed the force to see to it that these boxes were large enough to hold the trash, and prevent it blowing about the streets.

SUPREME COURT IS TO MEET

All the Justices Are in the City—Some Important Cases Are Pending.

Washington, Oct. 12.—With all the justices in the city the United States supreme court will begin tomorrow its annual eight month session. The court will adjourn immediately after convening to pay its respects to the president, leaving all business incident to the beginning of the new term until Tuesday.

Nearly thirty cases were under advisement by the court when it adjourned in June. Several of these will be decided on the decision day which will be Monday, October 20. In the meanwhile, the court will listen to cases advanced for consideration because of their importance.

Among these will be cases involving the constitutionality of the clause in the Hepburn law, making pipe lines for the carrying of oil in interstate commerce subject to the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission; the constitutionality of the Oklahoma "grandfather" qualification for negro voters and several important rate cases.

BANKERS READY TO PROTEST

35 Representatives of Small Banks Will Appear Before State Currency Committee.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Prepared to appear tomorrow before the senate banking and currency committee in opposition to certain features of the administration currency bill, thirty-five representatives of small banks with a capital of $250,000 or less each, arrived here last night. Most of the states in the union are represented.

Speaking for the delegation, George W. Rogers of Little Rock, Ark., chairman, said the bankers favored prompt passage of a currency bill, but that unless some changes were made in the pending measure it would cause many of the small banks to suffer. He denied that small bankers were being used by the large ones to further the latter's interests. The meeting in connection with all parts of the country adopted resolutions condemning parts of the currency bill as it now stands, had been "in no way inspired by bankers in the large cities."

After a hearing before the senate committee in the morning the bankers will call on President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo.

TO PROBE A MURDER.

Tarrant County Citizens to Be Witnesses in Dallas.

Dallas, Oct. 12.—A large number of witnesses from Fort Worth have been summoned to go before the grand jury this morning in connection with the investigation into the murder of S. M. Stallings, whose badly decomposed body was found more than two weeks ago in a field a few miles east of Dallas. Bob West, brother-in-law of the deceased, is held at the county jail on an affidavit charging him with the murder. He asserts his innocence.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. S. M. Stallings, wife of the deceased, held in connection with the case, was released from custody following a habeas corpus hearing before Judge W. L. Crawford. She was held as a witness.

After the body of Stallings had been found it was several days before an identification could be made, so bad was decomposition. Stallings was shot in the back. His skull was crushed by some blunt instrument. He had been dead for several days.

Waco Man Has Made a Personal Test of Plant Juice, With the Usual Good Results.

There is no better known man in Waco than City Patrolman S. Frazier, who has lived here for thirty-four years and whose home is 1812 Burnett street in this town. Officer Frazier tried Plant Juice and the results were perfectly satisfactory to him. He said:

"I suffered for a long time with indigestion and stomach trouble, took many different remedies, but received but little relief. I was attracted to Plant Juice by the articles in the papers and the cures it was making, so I concluded that I would give it a trial. I am now entirely relieved of my troubles and have not a trace of them left, thanks to Plant Juice. I gladly recommend this remedy."

but that there were many rumors of disaffection among federal troops because of lack of pay. It has not yet been established by the state department whether the fall of Torreón was due to mutiny in the federal ranks or to the strategy of the constitutionalists. Official reports say the downfall of this important center has had a depressing effect on General Huerta's army.

Magazine Writer Released.

Eagle Pass, Oct. 12.—Arthur Temple, staff writer for a New York magazine, was released today after arrest in Piedras Negras, Mex., on a charge of making seditious statements alleged to have been printed in the publication for which he writes. Consul Blocker was instrumental in securing his release, which is said to have been conditional on departure from Mexico and a promise that he would say nothing further about the revolution.

More than half the federal garrison in Piedras Negras went south, this morning, presumably to meet constitutionalists reported advancing between Fuente and Hacienda Guadalupe. Piedras Negras has been almost depopulated by rumors of coming trouble.

Diaz Still in France.

Blarritz, Oct. 12.—General Porfirio Diaz, ex-president of Mexico, when shown dispatches today concerning the arrest of the deputies at the Mexican capital, displayed intense interest, but would make no comment for publication. He had intended to leave Paris this week and later proceed to Mexico, but he now expects to remain until the end of October.

Says Federal Officers Blundered.

Mexico City, Oct. 12.—The interior department today received a telegram from San Luis Potosi which ascribes the evacuation of Torreón to the incapacity of the federal leaders.

"Several Spaniards," says the telegram, "have arrived here from Torreón. They admit that the retreat of the federals was due to the inaptitude of their leaders. The authorities had more than sufficient resources to defend the city for a long time. They believe that the situation is not desperate and that the government can recover control of the whole region with the elements which are now concentrated at Hipolito (to the eastward of Torreón) and which it is about to send there."

A witness of the engagement in which General Alvarez was killed and his force annihilated, says that only three persons escaped; these were a captain, a sergeant and a private. General Alvarez started out from Torreón with 400 men and a battery of artillery. General Argumedo followed at a short distance behind with 200 men.

When Alvarez was ambushed by 4,000 rebels under General Francisco Villa, a former bandit known as "Pancho," the rebels poured in between him and General Argumedo, separating the federal forces.

General Alvarez saw himself hopelessly surrounded and his men being shot down on all sides. When only half a dozen men were left the federal commander broke his sword, sat on his horse and waited until the rebel bullets put an end to his life.

Villa came along shortly afterward. He caught sight of the body of General Alvarez and ordered his men to take it into Torreón. There it was suspended from a telegraph pole in a conspicuous place in the center of the city.

Torreón Refugees at Monterey. Mexico City, Oct. 11.—American and other refugees from Torreón who have arrived at Monterey are still there. They are unprotected northward owing to interruption of railroad traffic. Three railroad bridges have been destroyed and the train which left Monterey Friday was forced to return.

It is reported that the town of Rodriguez, near Laredo, has been occupied by the rebels. A passenger train from Tampico was burned near Coahuila, sixty miles west of Tampico. The passengers were obliged to return on foot.

For Municipal Parade.

Dallas, Oct. 12.—The first municipal parade to be held in the south will take place next Saturday morning in Dallas and will announce the opening of the state fair.

One thousand employees of the city of Dallas will march in this parade. It will be headed by Chief of Police John Ryan and a squad of mounted officers. Mayor J. H. Mackey made a short talk in which he stated his sympathy with the Sunday afternoon meetings. Following these will be the city officials to be followed by members of the police and fire departments. The mammoth automobile fire trucks will be in the line. Ending the line of march will be other employees of the city.

AGAIN CONSIDERS LAW ENFORCEMENT

TENNESSEE LEGISLATORS MEET FOR THE THIRD TIME THIS YEAR.

FIGHT WILL BE DETERMINED

Charges Made at Last Special Session That "Armed" Guards Were Introduced in the House.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 12.—When the Tennessee legislature convenes here in special session tomorrow it will be the third time this year that the members of that body have gathered in the legislative halls of the capitol. Incidentally it will be the first time in thirty years that two special sessions of the general assembly have been held within a twelve-month.

Interest in the deliberations of the coming session is especially keen on account of the fact that a determined fight is expected on the so-called "law enforcement bill" intended to make more effective the present prohibition laws. Through the efforts of "regular" democrats a vote upon these measures at the special session which closed September 27 was prevented.

To Consider Refunding Act. In addition to considering the "law enforcement bill," the special session will be called upon to consider the proposed amendment to the refunding act and a bill making an appropriation covering the expenses of the session. It has been estimated that from three days to a week will be required to dispose of the business which Governor Hooper has called upon the legislature to transact. It is also calculated that the minimum cost of the special session will be $10,000, raising the total legislative expense of the year to approximately $150,000.

The regular session of the Tennessee legislature opened January 6 last. After remaining in session until February 21 a recess was taken to March 17. Desiring to break a quorum on April 1, house fusionists went to Middleboro, Ky., and stayed away until the expiration of the seventy-five days for which legislators are paid. In the meantime members of the "regular" democratic faction kept the session alive until August 23, thus establishing a longevity record for Tennessee's legislative body.

"Regulars" Want Changes. Efforts of the regular democrats to effect certain changes in the state election laws precipitated the extended fight in the regular session. Because of these efforts the fusionists attempted to break the quorum by leaving the state. Friends of the proposed election law amendments daily met in the house, attempting to defeat the fusion filibuster by counting the absentees as "not voting." The amendments to the election laws, as passed at this time, now are before the state supreme court, the "regular" democrats having won in the court of chancery.

Not until June was the quorum restricted, and then for only three days. Not until the absolute necessity of re-enacting legislation was impressed upon them did the absent fusionists consent to return to the capital. It was at that time that a number of "additional" senators-at-arms were appointed, the doors of the legislative halls closed and an attempt made to re-enact the election law amendments.

Under these conditions these amendments again were voted on, passing by a vote of 53 to 18.

Feeling ran high at the first special session, which was called by Governor Hooper chiefly in order to secure passage of the "law enforcement bill." Charges were made by both factions that "armed" guards were introduced into the halls of the capitol, and that efforts were made at intimidation. While none of these charges were substantiated, the effect of bringing about a mutual agreement whereby all but members of the legislature were excluded from the capitol. No similar trouble at the coming special session is anticipated.

Governor Hooper, discussing the coming session tonight, said that a majority of the legislature recently was prevented by a filibuster from passing the "law enforcement bill" which will enable the people to elect the judges in the regular session. When it appeared that friends of law enforcement resented efforts of certain city officials of this state to intimidate by sending armed guards to the capitol, lurid newspaper accounts were sent broadcast, to the effect that advocates of law enforcement were trying to "run play" to force the passage of the bill.

The governor said that the approaching special session would have an opportunity to "restore the majesty of the law in the cities of Tennessee or face the rising tide of public indignation."

Tennessee's liquor laws frequently have been the center since 1877, when the historic "four mile law" which prohibited the sale of intoxicants within four miles of any school house except in incorporated towns licensing such sale was enacted.

Miss Gladys Massie Attempts to Start Fire in a Cook Stove With Kerosene.

Hamilton, Tex., Oct. 12.—A painful and serious accident befell Gladys Massie, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Massie, of Blue Ridge. During the absence of her parents from home the young lady, desiring a quick fire, had recourse to the oil can and in her haste to kindle the fire got the can too close to the flames. An explosion resulted which threw burning oil in the girl's face and over her clothing and only prompt action saved her life. It is feared that loss of sight may yet result from the accident.

Belton, Tex., Oct. 12.—County Tax Collector Nate A. Ensor returned last night from a week's tour on a tax gathering expedition, which is an annual event with him, having visited Little River, Holland and Hardisty. He reports collections as being excellent and above the average and from the manner in which poll taxes are being paid he is led to believe that there is an awakening interest in political matters that promises an unusually heavy vote in next year's elections.

MARKETS CLOSE TODAY

ON ACCOUNT OF COLUMBUS DAY, NO COTTON QUOTATIONS.

Weather Developments May Cause Wide Fluctuations During the Holidays.

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—The cotton markets on this side of the water do not open this week until Tuesday morning because of the observance of Columbus day. Weather developments in the cotton belt over the double holidays may be of great importance and may cause wide fluctuations when the new week opens. What appeared to be an intense cold wave was working toward the cotton region at the close of last week and its effect on the crop may be the deciding influence on prices.

Because this is the time of the first frosts in the cotton belt, the weather map will take on increased importance. Cold weather would cause a higher market, while the holding off of frost would encourage fresh short selling in volume. Much depends upon the time of the first killing frosts. This feature of the crop situation being somewhat more important than in the average year because the excessive fall of rains prevented bolls from maturing and in some sections encouraged fresh growth which, with frosts at this time, would not have a chance to mature.

Friday ends the present ginning period, in the schedule of census bureau reports, and at the week-end private forecasts of the number of bolls turned out may have some bearing on the course of prices. The report itself will not be issued until a week from Saturday. Bulls expect the figures to favor them because it is considered by many that the wet weather of the last month interfered with picking and, consequently, with the ginning of the crop.

The trade will watch more closely than ever the spot demand because there are signs of increasing interest on the part of buyers. Any improvement in spot business would be the greatest stimulus the bolls could get while an apathetic demand would play into the hands of the bears and increase the pessimism that is felt regarding the business outlook in one of two important sections of the cotton manufacturing world.

GRAND JURY IS RECONVENED

Investigating Body Will Resume Sessions This Morning to Hear New Cases.

The McLennan county grand jury will be called together this morning for a session that will last at least a week. After a two weeks' session beginning in September that body adjourned fifteen days ago, to meet again October 13. The grand jury returned thirty true bills during the time it was in session. Of these twenty-one were felonies and nine misdemeanors. This morning they will resume their task. County Attorney John McNamara will present all cases which were not taken up at the last session, and several new ones which have since come to the notice of the officers. It is expected the body will be in session all of this week. So far the grand jury has made no recommendations or special investigations that have been made public, confining their work to cases presented them by the attorney's office.

DALLAS MURDER CLUES WORTHLESS

CHIEF OF POLICE ADMITS RUNNING DOWN 100 WITH NO RESULTS.

KILLING WAS MOST BRUTAL

Miss Florence Brown, Aged 26, Prominent in Church Work and Life Exemplary.

Dallas, Oct. 12.—One hundred clues have been run down and all found worthless in the Florence Brown mystery, according to a statement today by Chief of Dallas Detectives Henry Tanner. Miss Brown, a church choir singer and prominent Young Woman's Christian Association worker, was found dead with her throat cut, in her uncle's real estate office here at 9 a. m. July 28 last. The circumstances of her death, Chief Tanner said today, have remained well nigh incredible ever since.

Miss Brown, 26 years old, rather handsome, was stenographer and confidential agent for her uncle, Jeff D. Robinson, of the firm of Robinson & Styrone. Her uncle was in Colorado on the morning of her death, Shadrack E. Cuthbertson, an employee in one of the firm's automobiles called, as was customary, at her home. Together they rode direct to the office, opening it about 8 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later Cuthbertson drove away in the automobile on business, leaving Miss Brown alone. She stood in the street doorway and waved good-bye to him, several persons afterward testifying they saw her do this. Cuthbertson returned just before 9 o'clock, finding the office apparently deserted. As the other employees were not due until 9, this was not unusual.

The office interior, on the ground floor, was entirely visible from the sidewalk, except two small rooms. Robinson's private office and a hat room just behind it. The hat room had two entrances, one from the private office and one from the main office. Hundreds of persons had passed this office, at one of the city's busiest corners on Field street, during Cuthbertson's absence. He entered, sat at his desk a moment, and then W. R. Styrone, of the firm, and G. W. Swor, an employee, entered together. Swor went direct to the hat room. Immediately he cried out to Styrone and Cuthbertson to come quickly, that "something has happened to Miss Brown."

The three found her lying on her face, throat cut, arms and shoulders bearing marks of a terrible struggle. They thought she was still alive. A physician who came on summons within two or three minutes said she had not been dead ten minutes. She was not a large girl, but whoever killed her had to fight hard. A deep bite on the outer side of one wrist showed where the slayer had held an arm with his teeth. Her face, arms and her breast through her waist, were scratched in places which led some detectives to believe a woman had attacked her.

Two Heavy Blows Struck. A heavy blow had been struck on her forehead, and one on the back of the head, these probably stunning her. Then apparently as she lay face downward the assassin had drawn back her head and cut her throat. Again there was the suggestion that the slayer was not muscular because the knife had been drawn three times through the wound. A washbowl in the hat room was half full of bloody water, and the inside knob of the door opening into the main office was bloody, indicating the killer first looked out to see if the office was empty. He washed his hands. Detectives said the girl's position face downward made it possible for the slayer to avoid blood except on his hands.

There was no exit for this person, neither door nor windows, except the front street door.

No knife was found, although sewers were searched and floors raised. The only thing approaching a weapon was a hammer, which belonged in the hat room. There was a tiny blood spot on its handle, but the iron head was clean. Those are all the material facts about the actual death that eleven weeks' search have revealed. At first it was thought she died defending her uncle's safe in the hat room to which she had the combination. But the safe contained less than $15 and no important papers. The safe door, an old one, had been violently jerked. Detectives concluded this was done in Florence Brown's struggle. Not the slightest evidence of attempted assault was found. Patrolman J. R. Brown, the girl's father, had the best passing her office door, and was a short distance away when she was killed. However, neither he nor other officers reached the place until after an overzealous undertaker had removed the body. Of the hundreds who passed the office, some within thirty feet of the murder, only the two were found to show any light on it. A woman acquaintance of Miss Brown had looked in about 8:30, noting the office apparently empty. A man noted the same thing. Another man thought he had heard a scream about 8:30.

Cuthbertson's story was verified to the last detail. Styrone and Swor have undergone literal third degree examination, some of them by private detectives, but not the slightest ground for arresting them or anyone else has been discovered. Even the wives of some of the men connected with the office have not been spared rigorous methods. Miss Brown's reputation so far has come through a long ordeal unharmed. Her letters showed about a year ago she fell in love with a married traveling man. She cut him off when she discovered he was married. This, the likeliest clue for a time, came finally to nothing.

CIRCLE A GINGER ALE HEAVEN BEGINS ON EARTH

Ingram Says This World Not a Mere Training School for the Next.

Rev. E. E. Ingram, in his sermon at the Central Presbyterian church yesterday morning, spoke on the application of Christian service to present-day conditions, taking as his text Mark 13:34: "And he gave to every man his work."

Mr. Ingram took issue with the expression of a recent editorial in the Waco Times Herald, in which a preacher was commended for returning to the doctrines of the fathers of the church, and preaching that the present life is merely a preparation for the life to come, a vestibule, as it were, leading into the kingdom of heaven. "The kingdom of heaven is now," said Mr. Ingram. "The life to come is but a continuation of this life. God still speaks. 'Revelation did not end with the last chapter of the book of Revelation. God still speaks to us in every new word of science, in every new word of human progress. Modern Christianity is based on sociology. Modern Christianity means service in bringing the kingdom of heaven into existence on this earth, now. It is not a work that awaits the soul alone. It touches the body as well. When Christ sent his apostles out to preach, he said, 'And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils, freely ye have received, freely give.'"

Work of Church the Same. "The work of the church is the same today that it was when the apostles were first sent out. It is to cast out devils—the devils of bodily ills and of mental darkness—as well as to preach spiritual truths. The first duty of a church that is established in the poorer section of a city may be to build a bath house. 'The idea that life on earth is merely a training school of the soul, to fit it for the life to come, does not accord with the teaching of Christ. The work of the Christian is to establish the kingdom of heaven here and now.'"

WACO TO DALLAS BY INTERURBAN

FIRST DAY'S BUSINESS ON NEW LINE PLEASES THE OFFICERS.

ROAD IN FINE RUNNING FORM

First Car From Hillsboro Arrived 7:35 Yesterday Morning and Last Car, Returning, at 11 P. M.

Connection between Waco and Dallas via the interurban route became a reality yesterday morning at 5:50 o'clock, when the first car carrying passenger traffic left the local offices of the Southern Traction company en route for the North Texas city. Thereafter at intervals of every two hours a car left the local station for the trip, up to 7:30 o'clock last night. The first car from Dallas reached Waco at about 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the last one at 12:45 this morning, cars running on the two hour schedule.

Road Now in Good Shape. Interurban service was to have been inaugurated October 1. A heavy rain, however, damaged the roadbed to such an extent that a delay ensued. The roadbed and tracks are now in good shape. The first car from Hillsboro to Waco arrived at 7:35 o'clock yesterday morning, leaving that city at 10, another car from that place arrived at 8:25 yesterday morning. The first car on the line going only to Hillsboro and intermediate points, left Waco last night at 5:50 o'clock and the last car for that place left here at 11 o'clock last night.

The initial run of passenger traffic cars over the route has proven that the track is in very good condition according to officials of the company. T. H. Williams, who is in charge of the local interurban ticket office, said yesterday that the first day's business of the line had been entirely pleasing.

Crowds Enjoy the Ride. "All trips were made without an unusual incident. The crowds who patronized the interurban evidenced the popularity of that means of transportation and the fact that no difficulty was encountered from the roadbed, makes us believe that service will continue without an interruption," he said. Several cars were a few minutes late in reaching Waco, this being attributed to the unfamiliarity with the schedule and as being expected by the officials.

Waxahatchie to Dallas. Between Waxahatchie and Dallas on the same line an hourly service is in effect. This service, it is expected, will be placed in operation between Waco and Dallas on October 19. On that date also the Corsicana branch of the line will be opened for service. These announcements were made by James P. Griffin, general passenger agent of the line, some days ago. The first heavy traffic of the interurban is expected to come within a short time. The Dallas fair opens in a few more days, and the line will probably add special cars to its regular service. Immediately after that exposition the Cotton Palace in Waco opens and again the special cars will be called into service.

PRICE GIVES $1,000 BOND

New Charge is Made, That Saloon Man Smashed a Telephone Wire.

Luther A. Price, arrested by the police Sunday morning at 1 o'clock, on complaint of a woman residing at 614 Washington street, was turned over to the county authorities Sunday afternoon. Complaints charging him with assault with a prohibited weapon and with cutting and breaking a telephone wire were made.

Price furnished bail in the sum of $500 in cash. The second charge was made yesterday.

Police Find Pistol Still Warm. According to the report telephoned to the police, a shot had been fired at a woman who lived in the Washington street house. The officers found an automatic pistol still warm from being fired in the house. Inquiry at 614 Washington street last night failed to elicit information as to the cause of the disturbance. The inquiry was met with an answer that there was no desire to discuss the incident.

WORK DONE, CHEMIST SAYS

Prof. Spencer's Professional Connection With the Bosque County Double Tragedy Ended.

"My report on the chemical analysis made of the viscera taken from the bodies of the Etheridge children has been handed to Dr. J. Frank McDonald, my work in connection with the case is completed," said Prof. Samuel R. Spencer, analytical chemist, last night when asked if he had any further communication with the Bosque county authorities.

Whether or not the chemist will be again called upon depends upon the outcome of the prosecution of the stepmother of the children who are alleged to have been murdered.

Asks Two Convictions. Sheriff Ratford says the state will ask for a conviction in two cases, the charge of murder being made in the case of Oscar Etheridge and in the case of Richard Etheridge. The prosecution will demand a penalty in each case of life imprisonment.

For that reason the county authorities have abandoned the effort to ascertain the cause of the deaths of the two children who were buried last June. The sheriff intimated that if the prosecution failed to make good the charges of murder now pending, the inquiry into the mysterious deaths of last June will be resumed, but he anticipated no such contingency.

Cox was picked up by a passing automobilist and rushed to St. Paul's sanitarium. He will recover.

Two Blacks Wounded, Another Is Jailed—"Everybody Carries a Gun," Says Prisoner.

As the result of a quarrel which started at a negro dance and supper given at the home of Charles Brown, seven miles from China Springs, Saturday night, Charles Brown and Fred Leathers were shot and Ben Sadler is in jail. Brown was shot in the left arm. The shots struck Leathers in the right chest. The latter's wounds may be serious. A shotgun was used.

According to the story told by Sadler last night while in the county jail, he was en route home from the dance about 11 o'clock when he heard the shots. He denies all knowledge of the shooting. It is understood that a quarrel started when one of the negroes passed some remark at the supper table. Sadler says he attempted to quiet the negro and left immediately afterwards.

"Everybody's Doing It." According to the information obtained by the authorities, the shots were fired from the roadway into a crowd of men. Two shots were fired. Sadler admits having a shotgun at the dance with him, saying he took it there "as almost everyone carries a gun to a dance." Deputy Sheriff Tom Flurney arrested Sadler at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and brought him to Waco.

CHRISTY WINS IN GAME OF LIFE

KNICKERBOCKER SAYS FAMOUS PITCHER TRUE LEAGUER IN LIFE'S GAME.

"CULTURED, CHRISTIAN MAN"

Religion Is Seasonable—Opinion, Not Reason—Baseball Spiritual Benefit.

"In the recent world's championship series my sympathies were mostly with the Giants as I am an ardent admirer of Christy Mathewson, for Matty is a college bred, cultured, Christian gentleman," said Dr. Hubert D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, in a sermon last night on "Mathewson's Great Game and the Game of Life." The pastor took as his text Romans 12:1, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable sacrifice." The so-called "free thought" of the agnostics is a lie, said the speaker. There is no freedom of thought unless it has been made free by truth, he declared. The "free thinker" is usually narrow. Luther's experience before the emperor and the assembled ecclesiastical host on the occasion of the demand for the retraction of his articles of faith was the beginning of true modern freedom of thought. In reply to the demand to retract Luther said: "I cannot and will not retract."

Reasonableness of Religion. "In presenting the question of religion," said Dr. Knickerbocker, "I want to appeal to your God given reason. I believe that religion is exceedingly reasonable. The only cause why men doubt the reasonableness of Christianity is that they consult only their opinions. Too often men gauge reason by their opinions."

"No theory or argument can best facts or fruits. What you hold in your hand is evident and what you hold in your heart is stronger still, because it cannot be snatched away by human power."

The little minnow that spends its life in the slimy ooze of a mud puddle, when told of the lashing sea waves, says that it is a lie. If the South Sea Islanders were told that a man in the north could walk across a lake of water dry shod, they would brand it a lie for they do not know what ice is. Things change rapidly. Things that were thought unreasonable a few years ago are entirely logical now. The science of yesterday is on the scrap pile of today.

"Opinion is based upon experience and experience is not the boundary of all knowledge. My plea tonight is that men may follow Jesus. That is the thing. I take you into the church if you will promise just to do that. I will not ask for your creed or beliefs if you will promise to follow Him. It makes no difference about your intellectual difficulties if you have made about Christ and will follow Him as a pattern the troubles will take care of themselves."

The speaker said that following Christ was reasonable because God had more sense than man. He declared that the strategy who was not following Christ practically said by his actions: "Well, God, you may be all right in the things of the mystic realms above, but as for the things on earth, I am able to plan my life to a better advantage than you."

Matty as an Example. Christy Mathewson was a living example of the truth of the divine decree stated in the text, "Present your bodies a living sacrifice," said the speaker. He pays physically to be religious, he declared. "I admire Mathewson as a college bred, cultured Christian gentleman. At a point in the strenuous life of the professional ball player when he ordinarily would have been on the scrap pile, Matty is still an active hero. In the recent great game when his teammates were unable to deliver the goods, Christy became the whole business and won a glorious victory."

"But he was just as great in the game that he lost. His unbeaten courage and dauntless manhood were victories themselves. It takes a man to act as Matty did. When defeat was certain and men failed to rally he presented to his teammates the example of a glorious Christian pitcher."

"If you can keep your nerve when all around you are losing theirs and making errors, too; if you can keep your heart though fortune hound you and pitch with master hand nine innings through; if you can fight all through the cheering cheers; if you can face the plate and never flinch, though all your team behind you goes to pieces and leaves you in the lurch at every pinch; if you can see your dream of winning broken because your teammates fail you in your need, yet still pitch on as though your heart were oaken, however much with sorrow it may bleed; if you can thrill the heart like some great story of knightly deeds and battles lost and won, you may achieve to some Matty's glory—and you can bet you'll be a man, my son."

The Impossible Defeat. "Matty held his nerve; his loyalty to the team remained true when he faced the odds; his character is mainly that is the kind of a game that is a victory in spite of the scoreboard. The battle of true manhood is won when manhood is asserted, regardless of scores."

"I never go to a baseball game without getting some spiritual help. The psychology of the game and the crowds present is an inspiration and a lesson. I am going to preach at the beginning of next season a whole sermon on 'Baseball' and invite the whole town out."

The pastor spoke at length on the common argument of the non-Christian that religion was too exacting in its sacrifices of pleasures and desires. "We never become anything without giving things up. It has been said that some people give themselves up into immortality. By giving their lives they receive from the world the immortality of their names. In the Bible we find that whosoever would find his life must lose it."

Love Stronger Than Reason. "We do not reach the greatest truths by reason, but by love," declared the speaker. "The greatest convictions do not come from the cold syllogisms, but because they are felt. As a matter of feeling man must be able to see that God has blessed him wonderfully, and

VIEWS OF LIFE BY GREAT MEN

INGRAM BEGINS SERIES OF SERMONS—FIRST THEME IS LOWELL'S POETRY.

BUSCH NO FRIEND TO WACO

Telegram of the Waco Business Organization After Brewer's Death Is Sharply Criticized.

"Life is a leaf of paper white, Whereon each one of us may write His word or two—and then comes night. Greatly begin! Though thou have time, But for a line, be that sublime—Not failure, but low aim, is crime."

Taking this poem of Lowell as his theme, Rev. E. E. Ingram last night preached on a text from Luke XII, 15, "For a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." This was the first of a series of sermons on "Life As the Great Have Seen It."

The View Others Take. "We are all interested," said Mr. Ingram, "in the view which others take of those things in which we are engaged. The man who is interested in his work or his play is always glad to hear other people talk about it, if we are in a position to talk intelligently."

"The thing in which we are all concerned is the business of living. Every right thinking man should be glad to hear opinions about life from those who have made a success at it. In some of the sermons which I shall preach on this theme the voices of the past will speak to us. At other times the voices of the living will furnish the inspiration. And always the Bible shall be our final authority when we come to pass judgment on the sentiment of the great."

Lowell's View of Life. "Tonight James Russell Lowell, an American poet, is to give us his view of life. I am glad to note that his view, expressed in the poem recited, is in accord with the words of Jesus. 'How, according to this poem, did Lowell look at life?'"

"Life is a leaf of paper white, Whereon each one of us may write His word or two—and then comes night."

"Life ought not to be a hit or miss proposition, as it is with many people. Chance plays too large a part in the work to which most of us devote our whole time on earth."

"There is some place where each of us will fit better than anywhere else in the world. The meaning of the poem is 'Find that place.'"

"In ancient times there was an old man who had one thought which he kept ever before the mind of his boy—that a certain enemy must be destroyed. His boy was Hannibal. The fierceness of the warfare which Hannibal waged on Rome showed the effects of that father's tenacious teaching."

Every Man a Debtor. "From his boyhood, William Pitt was told by his father that there was a great mission for him to perform."

even in business life men help those who have extended help."

"It is better to be dead than live against the ideals of the soul. It is better to be a dying lion than a living dog if there should be a roaming ground for the king of beasts in the mystic future," declared the minister in his concluding appeal.

If Coffee Don't Agree Use POSTUM

A Prominent Philadelphia Physician Says:

"If, on discontinuing coffee, you feel tired, languid, and 'out of sorts,' the coffee had better be forever discontinued, for you are on the verge of inebriety."

Thousands of people have taken warning and proved that coffee was the cause of their headaches, biliousness and nervousness.

A great many former coffee drinkers, feeling the need of a hot drink with meals, now use

POSTUM

A rich, nourishing food-drink, with a delightful flavour much resembling high-grade java. Postum is made from prime whole wheat, and a small per cent of New Orleans molasses. Contains no caffeine or any other drug.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum requires fifteen to twenty minutes' boiling to bring out the rich flavour and food value.

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a teaspoonful of the soluble powder in a cup of hot water, and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Drink it instead of Coffee.

H. C. Harder
CORNER 4th & AUSTIN ST.
A BETTER STORE FOR MEN.

He grew up with the purpose of fulfilling that mission.

"I think it was Lord Bacon who said 'Every man is debtor to his profession.' The saddest day in a young man's life is that upon which he concludes that the world owes him a living. It owes him only what he can get out of life, and that, too, in competition with others. It owes him no more than the opportunity to make good. The best day in a man's life is when he concludes that he has as much right to earn a living as anyone else."

"God intended every man to be a wage earner. They can earn their living only when they fill some definite place."

The Impediment of Wealth. "There are some things that may defeat us in our attempt to find our place in the world of workers. The most serious detriment is to inherit wealth. I am coming to believe that no man ought to be allowed to protect his wealth beyond his life. At death, all but a nominal amount for his family should return to the state. Let it return to the people from whom it came. Whatever increases our dependence lessens our ability. Many a wealthy young man has felt this, and has gone out into the world of work, leaving his wealth behind."

"In the second place, the poet says, 'Not failure, but low aim, is crime.' Purpose is the eternal condition of success. Nothing will take its place. Every great life has had its passion in some noble purpose. Said Richelieu, 'When I have once taken a resolution, I go straight to my aim. I overthrow all. I cut down all.'

Disraeli's Perseverance. "The greatest difference in men may be the difference in their tenacity of purpose. Disraeli gave a great example of tenacious purpose. When he appeared in public to read his first essay, he was booed down. He hurled his defiance at the audience with the words, 'You shall hear me.' And the time came when all England was willing and anxious to hear him."

"Genius, that power that dazzles mortal eyes, is oft but perseverance in disguise. There is infinitely more in perseverance than there is in inspiration."

"In the third place, the poet says, 'Greatly begin. Though thou hast time but for a line, be that sublime.' He puts the emphasis on character. Wealth is not the measure of a man. He who has money and nothing else is poor indeed. Can money buy love? Can it buy capacity for enjoyment of the beauties of life? Can it buy friendship? Can it buy heaven? A man's life is in his character—it 'consisteth not in the abundance of things that he possesseth.'"

The Basest Men Rise. "Neither is achievement a test of a man's worth. Some of the basest rise to places of highest honor. Have not Lorimer and Sulzer been given places of the greatest honor and trust? Yet if they be proven guilty of the crimes with which they are charged, shall we say that they are men of worth?"

"We have very recently had an instance of a man praised extravagantly by Waco citizens, and I for one must enter a protest against their holding him up for a model. The Waco business organizations, on the death of Mr. Adolphus Busch, dispatched to his family a telegram saying that 'Waco and Central Texas generally never had a better friend than Mr. Busch.' And the Waco Times Herald made the comment that the two business organizations, in so saying, spoke truly."

"Shall we say that Waco never had a truer friend than Mr. Busch? What about the family of William Cameron, to whom we are indebted for the beautiful park, the most delightful spot in the city? Have they not brought smiles to the lips of thousands of our people? Have they not brought joy to the hearts of hundreds of children who play daily in the park?"

He Cites the Example. "No man is the true friend of his fellows who builds his wealth upon the ruin of mankind. When diamonds represent the crystallized tears of weeping mothers—when mansions are built upon the misery of children—then I cannot see the work of the friend of man."

"Here is one citizen of Waco who believes that the family who have brought roses to pale cheeks, and laughter to the children of Waco, are better friends of this city than Mr. Busch."

"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he possesseth. When the final inventory is taken, it shall be seen that those most worthy of being called great are those who have set in motion forces which shall roll on forever for the continuous betterment of mankind."

"If you would accept the poet's view of life, and write nobly upon the white page now spread before you, the best step with which you can begin is to take the teachings of Jesus into your life."

No Strike of Operators.

Dallas, Oct. 12.—The strike of Katy operators which was looked for Saturday, did not materialize. It was understood the operators were voting on the proposition Saturday but since those reports the information has been meager. None of the men seems to have a desire to talk. It is not yet known what the outcome will be.

General Manager Webb declared again Sunday that should the strike be called at any time it would not hinder the company to any great extent. The telephone system, he said, would be used.

What Started Miller.

It was a round-up and the Jamestown Exposition that started Joseph

C. Miller, the famous ranchman, on his career as a showman, and made possible the 101 Ranch Wild West which exhibits in Waco next Thursday, October 16.

The round-up took place on the Miller brother's ranch at Elise, Oklahoma.

This ranch has an actual area of 101,

000 acres, and comprises one of the largest cattle raising ranges in the world. Naturally, on a ranch of this character, there would be scores of clever cowboys, experts in riding, roping and other sports of the range, and the Miller brothers conceived the idea of inviting the rest of the world to come to their ranch and see their employees lasso cattle, ride "outlaw" horses, and perform other interesting and often dangerous stunts.

The public came by thousands—they came by team and on horseback from near-by towns—and they came by special trains from all over the Middle West. That "round-up" made the Miller boys famous.

Then, after the round-up, then made the

Millers to transport their cowboys, horses and cattle to the Jamestown fair, and to give a practical demonstration of the real life of the cattle ranch. The proposition was accepted, and the 101 Ranch show proved to be one of the very few profitable ventures of the exposition. Then exhibitions were given in Madison Square

Garden, New York; the Chicago coliseum and other big buildings, always with success. Organization and the equipment of the show with special trains and other paraphernalia for

"touring" naturally followed.

Much of the success of the 101

Ranch has been won in the east and

Western Canadian provinces. The 101

Ranch, according to all reports, is a "real" west show. It has hundreds of Indians, cowboys, cowgirls, Mexican

PROBE PLAYER WRITERS' CONTRACTS

National Baseball Commission Withhold Giant's Share of Gate Receipts Until Dates of Signing Agreements Are Known

New York, Oct. 12.—When the New York Giants applied to the National Commission today for the losers' share of the world's series receipts they did not get the money. They were informed that the commission wished first to see the contracts of the player authors who are members of the Giants so that it might be assured their engagements to report the world's series were entered into before September 27.

Before the series last week the National Commission laid down the rule that no baseball player or manager might write for the newspapers during any future world's series. It was decided, however, that players who had contracts dated before September 27 might go ahead with their writing this year.

Half a dozen of the Giants wrote newspaper articles on the series during the play of last week.

Now the commission wants to inspect their contracts before it turns over the series money to the men of the team. It was declared last Monday that those players who could not produce bona fide contracts signed before the date specified, would be penalized, but it did not announce the penalty.

As a matter of fact, no penalty is likely to be inflicted, and the Giants' share of approximately $2162 each in the series money probably will be paid them in short order practically intact and it is believed all the writers among them can produce properly attested contracts ante-dating the commission's announcement of its ban on the player-authorship.

The sum of $100,000, however, will be deducted from the New York players' share because of the fine imposed upon Arthur Fletcher for his excited conversation with Empire City last Thursday at the Polo grounds. The Giants themselves have voted $1000 of their money to the widow of John Murphy, the groundskeeper at the Polo grounds for many years, who died recently.

Merkle Bears Players' Request.

Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, presented his fellow players' request today to the commission members, who met informally at their hotel headquarters.

Their session, if such it may be called, was an executive one, Chairman August Herrmann, President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, President Dan Johnson of the American league, the stage personality. She has methods and manners of her own. She is saucy, pretty, lithe, and well and dances well. She is likeable.

"Arthur Clough is fairly clever as Count Max. He has figure and personality to carry the part well. He portrays the husband, who, though he has a beautiful and charming wife, finds himself ever straying into thorny paths and seeking the flowers of other fields. When she appears at the prince's ball in disguise the countess discovers some truths that she has very recently suspected strongly, and also, incognito, wins his heart and watches a huge piece of evidence against him.

"The plot is necessarily overdrawn. Naturally it is not conservatively true to life. Being a light opera, and built to create amusement, it is an exaggeration of men, women and things, a travesty on their habits and conceits. But over and above it smacks of the truth in a way that doesn't make it all less so.

"Too, there is a bit of very nice dancing and some nimble, shapely figures. The play is deserving of patronage. It is a good, pleasing little show. It is well above the average and not much below the best."

The Smart Set.

With the engagement at the Auditorium October 15 the famous "Smart Set" company will make its annual appearance in the latest musical comedy success, "The Wrong Mr. President."

As usual the noted colored organization is headed by Salem Tutt Whitney, whose prowess as a dispenser of mirth needs little introduction to local patrons of the theatre. The play deals with a theme that permits of endless fun, unique features and novelties. As a production it is superior in personnel and equipment to any offering seen hereabouts in years.

The music is of the lifting inspiring kind, varying in rhythm from the slowest to the infectious rag time which these versatile artists know so well how to render. What plot there is concerns the adventures and mishaps of an ambitious negro who aspires for political as well as social honors. The scenes shift rapidly and the situations invite irresistible hilarity. The costumes, scenic investiture and other ingredients, it is understood, eclipse any previous vehicle exploited by this peer of all Ethiopian aggregations.

Court Concludes at Goldthwaite.

Goldthwaite, Tex., Oct. 12.—The first term of district court in Mills county to be presided over by Judge John D. Robinson of the Twenty-seventh judicial district, which now embraces Bell, Lampasas and Mills counties, was concluded here this week. District Attorney John L. Ward, District Clerk E. E. Upshaw and Court Reporter A. L. Monteith, all of Belton, were also in attendance upon court. The late session of the legislature transferred Mills county to the jurisdiction presided over by these officials. The grand jury after being in session a week adjourned after returning six indictments, all for misdemeanors.

Real Estate Deals at Thorndale.

Thorndale, Tex., Oct. 12.—One of the largest real estate deals occurring here for a long time was consummated Saturday, when G. W. Penny of Thorndale bought, through M. A. Johnson, the Harlan farm of 800 acres in Milam county, near the Brazos and Little rivers, paying therefor the sum of $64,000, or an average of $80 per acre.

M. J. Kuykendall has sold to G. S. Summerlin his saloon building, stock and fixtures in Thorndale for the consideration of $11,000.

three members of the commission, and Secretary John E. Bruce being present.

Merkle, who bore a letter from the players of the club asking that the Giants' share of the receipts in the aggregate be turned over to him, was informed as to the commission's ruling regarding the player-author contract matter and left without the money, but with no serious fear that the sum earned by the players of his team would be long withheld.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants talked with the commission afterward on the subject of the player-authorship. McGraw, who is himself prominent in the ranks of player-authors, expressed himself opposed on general principles to members of baseball teams contributing to the newspapers on baseball topics. He had done more or less such work himself, he said, as the practice had become quite general, but he had concluded that the custom was a bad one. His chief objection was that public criticism of one player by another affected club discipline adversely.

No other matters, so far as could be learned, were considered by the commission today. On Tuesday it intends moving over to Philadelphia to clear up any details in connection with the world's series that may need its attention there.

Constans Praises Umpires.

The work of the umpires in the games of the world's series just closed was praised today by Leslie H. Constans, secretary of the Pittsburgh National league team, who represented the commission in its business dealings in preparation for the series and while the games were on. Rigger, Connolly, Klem and Egan all came in for commendation by Mr. Constans. "It is the unwritten law of the world's series," said Mr. Constans, "that there shall be no kicking over umpires' decisions. This law was observed commendably during this year's series, the only breach worthy of note being Arthur Fletcher's, and I understood Fletcher now deeply regrets that he let his temper get the better of him in an exciting moment.

"In the absence of wrangling, the umpires were able to devote their entire energies to giving correct decisions. The result was high class umpiring by the competent men assigned to service in these important games by the two leagues.

BENZ WINS FOR WHITE SOX

Americans Gain Full Game of Nationals in Chicago City Series.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Joe Benz pitched invincible ball today for the Chicago Americans against the Chicago Nationals and the former gained a full game over their opponents for the title of city champions. The score was 2 to 0 and the battle went eleven innings. More than 27,000 persons saw the game.

Lord opened the eleventh inning with a double and Hal Chase sent him to third on a sacrifice. Ping Bodie was a victim of Cheney's benders. Collins then came forth and when Lord had the signal for a hit and run play Collins drove the ball to left field for a single which scored the Americans' captain. This also was Collins' fourth hit. Fournier followed with a single which sent Collins to third and when the two American leaguers worked a double steal, Fournier was on second and Collins had come in. Fournier was caught at third by Zimmerman, who received Archer's perfect throw and the inning ended.

Benz was so good that the Nationals got but one man on base in the first eight innings.

The official count of those present was 27,472. The total receipts were $18,977.25. The commission's share was $1,897.72 and each club will receive $8,537.76.

Cleveland, Oct. 12.—Pittsburg defeated Cleveland 3 to 0 today, making the post-series three games a sweep in favor of the National leaguers.

The game started promptly in spite of a drizzling rain which lasted until the fifth inning. Robinson had the Cleveland batters at his mercy, allowing them but three hits while with the lead to score only once when, with Liebold on third, through an error, a sacrifice and an infield out, Robinson passed Lajoie and struck out Johnston. Carey, Dolan and McCarthy singled in succession, scoring Pittsburg's three runs. In the eighth, McCarthy singled, Wagner fanned, Miller singled and both runners advanced on Wilson's infield hit. Mitchell's single scored two runs. Twice with the bases filled Falkenberg retired the side with no runs. Only about 2,500 persons saw the game.

Dr. W. H. Smith, Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir:—I want to state a few facts simple and plain about your mineral water.

For several years I have been suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, had treatment by local physicians for weeks, without much benefit, was advised by them to use Mineral Wells water. On June 15, 1913, I went to Mineral Wells, remained there for six weeks, drank from one to one and one-half gallons of water daily; if any improvement it was so slight I could not tell it. I came home on July 1st, and concluded to try your mineral water. I received more benefit from the use of Smith's mineral water in one week than I did from Mineral Wells water in six weeks; in fact I began to improve from the first day I used Smith's mineral water, the improvement has been continuous, and I can cheerfully recommend the use of Smith's mineral water to all persons suffering from a like disease.

Yours very truly,
MRS. GEO. F. MUNNERYN.LIVING ARE NOT
AMONG THE DEADRELIGION ARISES OUT OF MAN'S REALIZATION OF HIS WEAKNESS.

SERMON BY REV. P. H. FAULK

Life Not Found in Wealth—Christ's Conquest of Death—Two Kinds of Fear.

"Why seek ye the living among the dead?" was the subject of a sermon preached by Rev. P. H. Faulk, pastor of the Turner Street Baptist church. He said in part:

Plutarch says that religion is the outgrowth of necessity, weakness and fear. When I first received this statement from the pens of the ancient biographer I arose in rebellion against the theory. I thought so much beneath the dignity of an intelligent worshiper. I was not willing to grant that such were the motives which lead me to beseege a throne of grace day by day. I argued with myself that the Christian approaches his God with a consciousness of the fullness of his resources; that he came with a sense of need supplied, fortified with strength and confident of a blessing.

Upon mature reflection I changed my mind and now believe that our ancient biographer is right. For what motive, other than necessity and an acute sense of that necessity could lead a soul to ask at the hands of the invisible those things which no earthly power can bestow? What could the more needy man, an intelligent being borne on the stream of life toward the meadow of death with an absolute certainty that e'er long he must pass beyond the horizon that bounds mortal vision and mortal sense. What more natural than that such a being turn for help to the all-powerful force which gave him this momentary existence? And the more intelligent the creature the more acute this sense of necessity and the more persistent the plea for the need merited.

Helplessness Seeks Strength.

This prayer for supernatural intervention is made more earnest by the consciousness of the creature's utter helplessness. He is unable to change his spots or the Ethiopian his skin as for us to attempt to staunch the stream of time or stay the hand of death and thus add one day to our natural existence. What a great necessity for divine help in the face of utter weakness! It seems strange that one could be so needy and so weak and yet remain undaunted by his unceasing march to eternity. It is not until the heart that the soul cries out in its distress, "Lord, save or I perish." And it is not until the soul reaches out to the invisible that religion exists in that heart and the hope that is as an anchor to the soul is given.

Christ's Conquest of Death.

Sad hearts were in Jerusalem, sadness in the presence of Jesus, sadness everywhere. He who had been the hope of thousands of hearts oppressed in death, He rose. And the resurrection which he effected was to secure to us our own weakness could not secure to ourselves—victory over death.

Women, more devoted than men, and with characteristic devotion were early at the tomb on the morning of the third day. But they sought the dead body. So the shining heralds informed them, "He is not here; He is risen, as He said."

After forty days he went to heaven in the presence of his disciples. The ascension inspired us with holy fear and fills us with divine hope. We simply trust him and wait while he lives among the dead. Whether on land or in the spacious sea, but must give back its long committed dust.

Involve and faithfully shall these Make up the full amount not the least Embosomed or mislaid of the whole tale."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Waco Traveling Men Arranging An Effective Advertising Stunt for October 25.

One of the principal features discussed at the meeting of the traveling men of Waco yesterday morning at the Metropole hotel was the matter of going to Dallas on Traveling Men's day there at the Texas State fair on October 25, and boosting the Traveling Men's day at the Texas Cotton Palace, November 8, in Waco. It is probable that an interurban train will be chartered to Dallas on Traveling Men's day, to boost the railroad and to assist in the advertising stunt in Dallas.

Arranging the Program.

The entertainment committee is mapping out a splendid program to be carried out in the Cotton Palace coliseum on Traveling Men's day here, a suitable speaker to be selected, to speak in the morning, and immediately followed by games and amusement to be provided by the drummers for the crowds on the lawn in the spacious grounds.

There will be several comic features in the traveling men's parade at 10 o'clock in the morning of November 8, which will be well worth coming miles to see.

DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

IMPOSING RELIGIOUS CEREMONIES AT BOSQUEVILLE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Handsome Edifice Erected by Methodist at Cost of $5,000—Rev. Knickerbocker Preaching.

The Bosqueville Methodist church, a new $5,000 structure, was dedicated to services yesterday with imposing ceremonies and in the presence of one of the largest congregations that has assembled in the community for some time. The building has just been completed and yesterday's services were the initial meeting in it. The church is located a short distance from the town of Bosqueville, and only about five miles from Waco.

All-Day Services Held.

Services in connection with the dedication continued throughout the day. In the morning the surrounding members, from far and near, gathered for the event. The first services were held in the forenoon. At noon dinner was spread upon the ground. In the afternoon, beginning shortly after 3 o'clock, the services were conducted by Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, this city. An automobile was sent for Dr. Knickerbocker and Mrs. Knickerbocker accompanied him. A special invitation had been extended to Dr. Knickerbocker to deliver the dedicatory address. His address lasted for almost an hour.

Handsome in County.

The church is the handsome Methodist building in Bosqueville community. It was erected by public subscription among the members, and is considered a very great addition to the religious part of that town. Besides members of the church, many invited guests attended the dedication. Among these were a number from Waco. These drove to the site in automobiles and buggies and, as a whole, the gathering was the largest assembled at that town for religious purposes in many months.

ROTARIAN REUNION IS PROJECT

Rally Call to the Faithful Throughout Texas Will Be Sounded at Today's Meeting.

A movement to bring all the Rotarians of Texas together in a state reunion to be held at the Cotton Palace during the exposition season will be formally launched at the regular meeting of the Rotary club which will be held at the State House today at fifteen minutes past the noon hour.

As is their wont, the Rotarians will meet around the festal board, for the Rotarians are not in sympathy with the theory that the best thought is stimulated by an empty paunch. It is their invariable custom to transact business after eating.

Secretary G. C. Sneed, in the formal notice he has sent out to the sixty members of the club, announces that James Hays Quarles will be the toastmaster on this occasion and promises "a great big fine day to you. He gives this caution: 'Fellow Rotarian, it's cold soup for you if you are late,' and adds, parenthetically:

"Quarles believes in smiles. He smiles, then you smile, not because he's so funny, but he makes you feel that you can't help but smile—don't merely 'grin,' but smile—don't occasionally smile out loud. Smile and the world smiles with you; weep and the world laughs at you."
